ii. References to buildings/objects

The text mentions an οἶκος ναυκλήρων, oikos naukleron, but this seems to be the designation of the association itself and not of a building.

VII. ORGANIZATION

vi. Laws and rules

In his letter, Hadrian confirmed "the law" (τὸν νόμον, ton nomon) according to which they (sc. the naukleroí) asked to constitute (their association).

According to the editors, this means that the emperor confirmed the statutes of the association.

X. ACTIVITIES

iv. Honours/Other activities

Via the city, the naukleroi addressed the emperor with a petition of their own that asked for the creation of the association. Some preliminary organizational structure which made the composition of the petition possible, must have existed even before the official recognition of the association.

XII. NOTES

For an oikos naukleron in Tomis cf. CAPInv. 1199.

A naulerus de oeco poreuticor(um) is commemorated in an inscription from Ashkelon (W. Eck, CIIP 2342).
