VII. ORGANIZATION

iii. Members	Philokrates from Ilion, the person to whom this altar belonged, was almost certainly a member of the association. In the same inscription, Philokrates is honoured by three other associations (see below). Very probably, he was the founder of one of these, the Matioi ktoinetai eranistai Philokrateioi (Ματίοι κτοινέται ἐρανισταὶ Φιλοκράτειοι). See V. Gabrielsen, The Naval Aristocracy of Hellenistic Rhodes, (Aarhus, 1997) 152-53. Attempts to establish the identity of Philokrates (see Hiller von Gaertringen's note to IG XII.1 157) have been challenged: V. Gabrielsen, 'The Status of Rhodioi in Hellenistic Rhodes', C&M 43 (1992) 48 n.9.

IX. MEMBERSHIP

iv. Status	Philokrates of Ilion, the person to whom this altar belonged, was a foreigner in possession of epidamia in Rhodes. Philokrates had performed the liturgy of the choregia twice.

X. ACTIVITIES

iv. Honours/Other activities	The Hermaistai Thesmophoriastai had honoured Philokrates from Ilion, who was in possession of epidamia in Rhodes, with a gold wreath. The association is recorded with other private bodies that had honoured Philokrates: the Isiastai eranistai koinon (ὕπὸ Ἰσιαστῶν ἐρανιστῶν κοινού), the synthytai Rhodiastai epidamiastai (ὕπὸ συνθυτῶν Ῥοδιαστῶν ἐπιδαμιαστῶν) and the Matioi ktoinetai eranistai Philokrateioi (ὕπὸ Ματίων κτοινετῶν ἐρανιστῶν Φιλοκρατείων). He was also honoured by the citizens of Kamiros (ὕπὸ Καμυρέων).
------------------------------	--

XI. INTERACTION

i. Local interaction	The association, which was probably based in the city of Rhodos, is seen to honour an individual together with the citizens of Kamiros.
ii. Interaction abroad	Any connection between the association and the city of Ilion, the place of origin of Philokrates, must be indirect and conjectural.

Note

The cultic and theophoric elements in the name of this association render it certain that it was a private body.
