ii. Source(s) provenance	The stone was first seen by Reinach in 1882 in a site called "Katzi-Davan" in the vicinity of Abdera (BCH 8 (1884): 49: "aux environs d'Abdère"). Then, in 1937, Bakalakis published what he considered to have been a second stone that he saw reused as a threshold of a private house at the village of Paradeisos by the Nestus river and the ancient city of Topeiros (Bakalakis 1937). This second text offered only one line in Latin, with the same text as l. 2 of Reinach's inscription. In 2011 Parissaki suggested that these two stones should be considered as one and attributed to Philippi and not to Abdera or Topeiros, as suggested by earlier editors and still by Pilhofer 2009. No autopsy of the stone(s) since Bakalakis' publication.

XII. NOTES

i. Comments	Another dedication to Heros Aulonites from the territory of Philippi (Philippi II 580/G488) contains a list of names arranged under two columns (ten in the left and nine in the right one). Two dedicants are Roman citizens, one with a cognomen of Greek origin; but most are peregrini of Thracian origin. Among the names, Zeipas is the most frequent (10 times).
