VI BUILT AND VISUAL SPACE

ii. References to buildings/objects

The four secretaries of the synergion dedicated the στατίων, station, to the hieron synergion. The station may be the place, where the monument is erected, perhaps the office of the synergion (cf. Robert 1949: 202-5).

VII. ORGANIZATION

iv. Officials 4 grammateis, all in their second term: Neon, Lucius, Alexandros and Myragenes. For the expression ἐπὶ γραμματέων τῶν περὶ κτλ. (epi grammateon ton peri ktl.) to specify the grammateis themselves cf.

Robert 1949: 202 with note 5.

They dedicated the  $\sigma\tau\alpha\tau\acute{l}\omega\nu,$  station, to the synergion.

Eponymous officials The names of the grammateis are used in order to date the inscription.

X. ACTIVITIES

iii. Worship The name hoi Demetros therapontes indicates an active role in the cult of Demeter.

Deities worshipped Demeter

iv. Honours/Other activities The attendants of Demeter honoured the eques Romanus and later consul Papeis with a statue.

XII. NOTES

i.	Comments	At the time of the erection of the statue Hemerios had been an eques Romanus. When he was given the rank of senator and became consul, the attendants of Demeter emended line 1 from Ῥωμαίων ἰππῆα, Rhomaion hippea, to Ῥωμαίων ὕπατον, Rhomaion hypaton (a part of the word ὕπατον, hypaton, is carved on a rasura). Before Hemerios became consul, he had acted at regional and provincial level as demiourgos, kilikarches, gymnasiarchos and lawyer.  The attendants of Demeter appear to be the same as the hieron synergion mentioned at the end of the inscription.
		Maybe the synergion of the servants ( therapontes ) of Demeter is identical with the association of porters in the grain-market, known from honorary inscriptions for Caracalla and a member of the cities elite in Tarsos (see CAPInv. 1012 ), cf. Broughton 1938: 57 note 3. Robert 1977: 93. Ziegler 1985: 146.

	Note	The use of the term synergion , the existence of officials and the documented activities of the attendants of Demeter suggest that we are dealing with a private association.
