XII. NOTES

i. Comments	For the meaning of neotera as a "younger, maybe reformed association" (in opposition to the older epichoric name hieros doumos) cf. Poland 1931: 1078, and parallel evidences in Ibid. 1908: 171f. Cf. the similar interpretation of Herrmann 1962: 43 as meaning "ein jüngerer, späten gegründeter Verein". For similar specifications in Lydia cf. TAM V.1 92, ll. 2-3: ή σύνοδος τῶν νεῶν ποδαρίον (he synodos ton neon podarion); TAM V.1 451, ll. 1-3: ἡ νεοτέρα φράτρα τοῦ Ἀσκλεπιοῦ (he neotera phratra tou Asklepiou); TAM V.1 537, l. 1: ἵερὰ συμβίωσις καὶ νεοτέρα (hiera symbiosis kai neotera); TAM V.3 1556, l. 3: νέοι φιλάνπελοι (neoi philanpeloi). For the identification between doumos and symbiosis cf. Buresch 1898: 59. For the identification between symbiosis and phratra in Lydia cf. Herrmann 1962: 42f. and n. 157, with reference to Artemidoros Daldianos (IV 44 and V 82).

XIII. EVALUATION

i. Private association	Probable
Note	If the association is a cult association related to the attested gods it is surely a private one. There is nevertheless a possibility that the hieros doumos is a public association or institution related to different gods of the community.
