i.b. Document(s) typology & language/script	IG IV 790: Honorary inscription in Greek erected by the aleiphenomenoi for Bitos, son of Theodoros. IG IV 792: Honorary inscription in Greek erected by the aleiphenomenoi for Ariston, son of Antisthenes.
i.c. Physical format(s)	Both monuments are marble statue bases decorated with cymatia on the top and bottom.
ii. Source(s) provenance	Both monuments were found in the ruins of the church Palaia Episkope.

IX. MEMBERSHIP

ii. Gender	Men
Note	As they are called aleiphenomenoi and consequently they took part in the exercises in the gymnasium, they were men.

X. ACTIVITIES

iv. Honours/Other activities	The aleiphenomenoi honour Bitos, son of Theodoros and grandson of Kallippos, and Ariston, son of Antisthenes. Both honorands are designated as benefactors. Probably they were functionaries of the gymnasium, perhaps gymnasiarchoi .

XII. NOTES

i. Comments	IG IV 792 seems, as far as the facsimile presented in IG allows us to conclude, to be a more recent than IG IV 790. Whilst M. Fraenkel dates IG IV 790 to the late 3rd c. BC, the lettering of IG IV 792 seems to be dated to the 2nd or even to the 1st c. BC. This chronological distance between the two inscriptions may indicate that hoi aleiphenomenoi were not simply those who exercised themselves in the gymnasium and voted ad hoc for the erection of monuments for their benefactors, but perhaps an organized collectivity. For groups active in the gymnasia see Fröhlich 2013: 64 n. 20. There is a reference at Troizen (IG IV 749) where neoi are attested already in the 4th c. BC as a group active in the gymnasium. However, this attestation does not allow us to consider it an association.

XIII. EVALUATION

i. Private association	Possible
Note	It is possible that the aleiphenomenoi formed a private association in the framework of the gymnasium's life, as they voted honours for Bitos and Ariston. However, there is no further concrete evidence, that they formed an organized group with enduring activity (the chronological distance between the two inscriptions [see above XII.i: Comments] is perhaps to be taken into account) and not simply those who exercised themselves in the gymnasium and voted ad hoc for the erection of monuments for their benefactors, perhaps functionaries of the gymnasium.
