IX. MEMBERSHIP

iv. Status	The honorand, Gnomagoras, son of Dorotheos, Neisyrios, was a high-profile individual, holding high-ranked offices, performing services in the sacred and civic sphere. He was commander of a triemiolia, assumed the office of damiourgos (eponymous magistrate) and held the office of gymnasiarchy. During his gymnasiarchy, he supplied oil for 13 months to all freeborn citizens and his benevolence extended to those settling in Nisyros and to foreign residents. He was honoured by a number of public and private bodies. He showed his adherence to the imperial power, by serving as priest of the imperial cult (IG XII.3 104). He was crowned with multiple golden crowns by the boule and honoured by a number of private associations: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Hermaizontes: CAP Inv. 104 - Aphrodiastai Syroi: CAP Inv. 105 - [Dion]ysiastai Ey[rythemid]ioi: CAP Inv. 107 He made himself pleasant to all koineia in Nisyros (CAP Inv. XII. NOTES

i. Comments	Two more dedications to Zeus Milichios were found in Mandraki (IG XII.3 95; IG XII.3 96). It is interesting to note that IG XII.3 96 is a thank-offering to Zeus Meilichios set up by foreigners originating from Asia Minor (Pisidia, Cappadocia, Ephesos), Thrace and Kos. The editor of IG XII.3 postulates that this list contained members of the koinon of Zeus Meilichios.
ii. Poland concordance	Poland B 243.

XIII. EVALUATION

i. Private association	Certain
Note	The name of group, cultic in nature, suggests that this group is a private association. Due to the nature of evidence (honorific inscription) we know next to nothing about its internal organization.
