VII. ORGANIZATION

ii. Leadership	Maybe the four men mentioned with hoi peri (Marcellus, son of Eleis, Hermogenes, son of Deios, Sokrates, son of Germanus, and Hermogenes, son of Tiberius) are the leaders of an association, not only of the hieraphoroi , the carriers of sacred objects (cf. the comment in XIII.i).
iii. Members	Some of the members of the association act as carriers of the sacred objects (hieraphoroi) in processions and rituals, maybe in the imperial cult.

X. ACTIVITIES

iii. Worship	Some of the members of the association act as carriers of the sacred objects (hieraphoroi) in processions and rituals, maybe in the imperial cult.
Deities worshipped	Imperial cult?
iv. Honours/Other activities	Several hieraphoroi of associations and the ostiarrii honoured the emperor Caracalla with a statue.

XI. INTERACTION

i. Local interaction	The hieraphoroi of several associations collaborate together in processions and rituals as carriers of sacred objects and together with the ostiarrii for the erection of a statue.

XIII. EVALUATION

i. Private association	Possible
Note	Since in the same inscription the hieraphoroi of the (syntechnia of the) wool carders and the association of the porters are named (see CAPInv. 1780 and CAPInv. 1781), it is possible that the carriers of sacred objects hoi peri ('those under') are also members of an association. The four men mentioned appear to be the leaders of the group, given that the other members identify themselves as 'those under them'. The nature of this possible association is unknown.
ii. Historical authenticity	Certain
