XI. INTERACTION

i. Local interaction	The association submitted a request, through its treasurer, to the Athenian Boule (πρόσοδον ποιησάμενος πρὸς τὴν βουλὴν, prosodon poiesamenos pros ten Boulēn, ll. 12-16) to confirm (ἐπικυρώσαι, epikurosai) the erection of a painted picture (γραφτῆς εἰκόνας ἐν ὅπλοι, graptēs eikonos en hoploi ll. 17-18, 25-26), of their proxenos and epimeletes tou limenos in front of his office (ἀρχεῖον, archeion). The submitted request was interpreted as a proof of an obligation to do so (Radin 1910, 55) and of control of the group by the Athenian council (Jones 1999, 43-45), although I cannot see it as a requirement devised especially for associations. It is also noteworthy the appropriation of the title πρόξενος, proxenos (drawn from the field of inter-poleis relations) by the association to describe its relation to the honoured person. Proxenos is essentially a representative of the associations' interests in Athens, providing access to local (commercial and political) networks.
