v. Other staff	Pap.Agon. 3: ? President of the games (ll.32-33: διοικήσας τὸν ἀγῶνα, dioikesas ton agona): Marcus Aurelius Horion It is tempting to push this to dioiketes if a formalised position, given the similarities to that civil position in Egypt at the time, but I can find no parallel (MG)

viii. Obligations

Pap.Agon. 1: Marcus Aurelius Apollodidymos pays 250 denarii for his entrance into the association here, l. 15 (cf. CAPIv. 1939).

Pap.Agon. 3: Aurelius Hatres apparently pays an entrance fee of 850 denarii (l. 15), and makes several (but unnumbered) payments for the temples of the emperors. Whether this payment was for entrance to the association itself, or whether he paid this as part of his accession to high priest is not entirely clear. With respect to the former particularly, one wonders why he would pay an entrance fee to an association that he was presumably already a part of. Possibly this was just recording that he had actually made the payment, or that it was an annual cost that all members were required to pay (although there is no evidence for any of this within the document itself).

Pap. Agon. 4: Marcus Aurelius Serenus paid 250 Attic drachmas (l. 25)

The reason behind the differing amounts is entirely unclear, unless the reading of Pap.Agon. 3 is incorrect (which it may well be, given the similarity between the costs that appear in the other documents). It may be the case, however, that high-priest was to pay more than the other officials (although cf. CAPIv. 1939).

ix. Privileges

Pap.Agon. 1: ll. 1-3 contain a summary of the various imperial warrants in a letter of Claudius, but which appear to have begun under Augustus.

ll. 3-5: summary of edict of Hadrian confirming privileges bestowed on the association, "inviolability, seating precedence, exemption from military service, immunity from public duties, to keep untaxed all that they earn from private business or the games (?) ... not to supply guarantors, exemption from special (?) taxes [ἀνεισφορία aneisphoria here], communal sacrifice, not to be forced to supply billets for foreigners, nor to be imprisoned in any prison . . ."

ll. 5-7: A letter from Septimius Severus to the association confirming the privileges granted by earlier emperors.

ll. 7-8: A letter from Severus and Caracalla to the association upholding the privileges that the association currently receive.

ll. 8-9: A letter from Severus Alexander confirming the earlier edicts of Severus and Caracalla.

Pap. Agon. 3: ll. 1-4: Letter of Claudius to society allowing εἰκόνες eikones and confirming privileges conferred by Augustus, namely the erection of images with which the emperor may be worshipped and confirmation of "the rights and favours granted you by the god Augustus."

ll. 4-7: Decree of Hadrian concerning privileges namely "inviolability, seating precedence, exemption from military service, immunity from public duties, to keep untaxed all that they earn from private business or the games (?) ... not to supply guarantors, exemption from special (?) taxes [ἀνεισφορία aneisphoria here], communal sacrifice, not to be forced to supply billets for foreigners, nor to be imprisoned, . . .ed, or liable to the death penalty."

ll. 7-11: Letter of Severus confirming their privileges: "all the rights and favours that you have had from the beginning, bestowed by emperors before me, those I also maintain with the intention of preferring and holding in esteem men of artist . . . religious rites."

ll. 11-12: Letter of Alexander confirming the decisions (presumably relating to privileges) of Caracalla and Severus, and earlier emperors.

ll. 12-17: Letter from society to members, confirming the appointment of Aurelius Hatres of Oxyrhynchus as high priest (see above).

ll. 17-33: ratification of this letter dated by games at Panopolis and the current officers of this association (see above).

Pap. Agon. 4: ll. 1-2: Summary of an edict of Hadrian confirming the privileges granted to the association, namely "inviolability, seating precedence, exemption from military service, immunity from public duties, to keep untaxed all that they earn from private business or the games (?) ... not to supply guarantors, exemption from special (?) taxes, communal sacrifice, not to be forced to supply billets for foreigners, nor to be imprisoned..."

ll. 3-5: A letter from Septimius Severus to the association confirming the privileges granted by earlier emperors.

ll. 6-7: A letter from Severus and Caracalla to the association noting that none of the privileges bestowed upon the group would be revoked.

ll. 8-9: A letter from Severus Alexander confirming both the edicts of Severus and Caracalla.

ll. 10-14: A letter from Marcus Aurelius Serenus to the senate requesting confirmation of his privileges (dating to the reign of Gallienus).

Pap.Agon. 5: ll. 2-8 reproduces the letter of Severus appearing in Pap.Agon. 3 ll. 7-11, and above Pap.Agon. 1 ll.5-7, confirming the privileges of the association: "all the rights and favours that you have had from the beginning, bestowed by emperors before me, those I also maintain with the intention of preferring and holding in esteem men of artist . . . religious rites," the letter of Severus and Caracalla from Pap.Agon. 1 ll. 5-7, and Alexander (cf. Pap.Agon. 3 ll. 8-9).

VIII. PROPERTY AND POSSESSIONS

ii. Realty	P. Oxy. XIV 1691: rental of three arourae for 2500 dr (one of the lessees, Aurelius Diogenes, son of Diogenes, was a member of this association).
iii. Income	Pap.Agon. 3: What is this fee that Aurelius Hatres paid "by imperial decree"? A membership cost? If annual then 850 denarii per year per member. A payment for being leader or an official? Therefore, 850 denarii per official position? Other documents reveal that 250 denarii or 250 Attic drachmas were membership fees (see VII.viii Obligations).

IX. MEMBERSHIP

i. Number	At least 4-5 (as officials seem to suggest, see e.g. Pap.Agon. 3 and above), but significantly larger.
ii. Gender	Men
Note	The recorded names are male names.
iii. Age	Adults
iv. Status	Roman citizens, due to the date (and because of their privileges). Pap.Agon. 1: Marcus Aurelius Apollodidymos, son of Ploution, an Oxyrhynchite Marcus Aurelius Sarapammon, an Alexandrian and a Hermopolite Marcus Aurelius Paulus, an Antinoopolite Marcus Aurelius Silvanus, a Hermopolite, a citizen of Rome [why is this included here given the date?] and Athens, also Rhodes and Pergamon (?) Marcus Aurelius Pto... Pap.Agon. 3: [Marcus] Aurelius Hatres, son of Peteesi, son of Nechthenibis is an Oxyrhynchite (and he was appointed at Panopolis). Marcus Aurelius Herakleios Commodus alias Nicantinoo is a citizen of Antinoopolis, Panopolis, Hermopolis, Lycopolis, and Oxrhynchus. Marcus Aurelius Agathokles alias Asterios is a citizen of Alexandria, Antinoopolis, and Lycopolis. [Marcus] Aurelius Kasullas, citizen of Panopolis and Antinoopolis. Marcus Aurelius Horion (possibly as president of the games) is a citizen of Hermopolis, a colonist of Antioch and a "citizen of many other cities" (l. 32: καὶ κόλων Ἀντιοχεῖς μητροπολίτης καὶ ἄλλων πολλῶν πόλεων πολίτης, kai kolon Antiocheus metropolis kai allon pollon poleon polites). Marcus Aurelius Agricola is a citizen of Panopolis. Pap.Agon. 4: One of the association's officers is an Alexandrian citizen (Titus Aelius Agathodaemon, ll. 21, 28). One officer is a citizen of Leontopolis (Marcus Aurelius ...on, son of Anubion, ll. 21, 25). The new high priest—Marcus Aurelius Serenus, son of Serenus, also called Ptolemaeus—is an Oxyrhynchite (ll. 17, 24), who was apparently elected in Antinoopolis (l. 24).

vi. Proper names and physical features

PSI V 450v: Agathos Daimon alias Theon, son of Agathinos, grandson of Adon, whose mother is Sarapias

Pap. Agon. 1: Marcus Aurelius Apollodidymos, son of Ploution
Marcus Aurelius Sarapammon
Marcus Aurelius Paulus.
Marcus Aurelius Silvanus
Marcus Aurelius Paulus also known as Antinous.
Marcus Aurelius Pto... .

Pap. Agon. 2: Aurelius Apollodidymos, son of Ploution

P.Oxy. 14.1691: Aurelius Diogenes, son of Diogenes

Pap. Agon. 3: [Marcus] Aurelius Hatres, son of Peteesius, son of Nechthenibis;
Marcus Aurelius Herakleios Commodus alias Nicantinoos;
Marcus Aurelius Agathokles alias Asterios;
[Marcus] Aurelius Kasullas;
Marcus Aurelius Horion (possibly as president of the games);
Marcus Aurelius Agricolaos.

Pap. Agon. 4: Marcus Aurelius ...gus also called Antinous;
Marcus Aurelius Serenus, son of Serenus, also called Ptolemaeus;
Marcus Aurelius ...on, son of Anubion;
Titus Aelius Agathodaemon

X. ACTIVITIES

ii. Meetings and events

Pap.Agon. 1 appears to have been composed during the first Capitolia of AD 273-74 (Il. 15-16 and Remijsen 2014: 198 n. 6)

Pap.Agon. 3: It seems that the synodos had been active in the games at Panopolis.

Pap.Agon. 4: Participation in games at Antinoopolis.

XI. INTERACTION

i. Local interaction

If these documents do all represent the same association as they seem to, then it (or more precisely, its members) appears to have been present in several communities:

Pap.Agon. 1: found U19 Oxyrhynchus; the Capitolia here began in c. AD 273, and see Remijsen 2014: 198 nn. 5-6.

Pap.Agon. 3: found U19 Oxyrhynchus; suggests participation in the games at Panopolis

Pap.Agon. 4: found U19 Oxyrhynchus; suggests participation in games at Antinoopolis

Pap.Agon. 5: found U19 Oxyrhynchus

SB XXVIII 16959: found U15 Hermopolis

The officials seem to be from various parts of Egypt: this shows the large network at national (and at times international) level that this association enjoyed.

XII. NOTES

i. Comments

It is likely that CAPIv. 1930, CAPIv. 1935, CAPIv. 1938, and CAPIv. 1939 overlapped with this association.

XIII. EVALUATION

i. Private association

Certain

Note

These are private associations, but certainly enjoy significant imperial privilege (as the Pap.Agon. papyri clearly illustrate).
