The base was discovered near a small rural funerary sanctuary 3 km. to the north of the modern village of Prophitis Ilias (Chrysostomou 2002). On the complex issue of the ancient city to the territory of which this location should be included (Edessa rather than the probably non-existent Menneis), see the commentary at EKM II 416.

VI BUILT AND VISUAL SPACE

i. Archaeological remains

The base was found in the vicinity of a small funerary sanctuary, most probably dedicated to Dionysos. The small temple contained a thymele for the sacrifices. A stone enclosure delimited the temple and four graves to the NW; immediately to the south of the enclosure, at least 19 graves were discovered. All burials seem to be dated to the third century AD, while the temple was destroyed before the end of the fourth century AD. The excavator has plausibly suggested that the graves within the original enclosure belonged to the family of the founder and / or leader of the cultic association (Chrysostomou 2002).

ii.	Leadership	A priest (ἱερεύς, hiereus , EKM II 397, 1. 2) is mentioned.
iii.	Members	μύσται, mystai (ΕΚΜ ΙΙ 397, II. 3-4)
iv.	Officials	ίερεύς, hiereus (ΕΚΜ ΙΙ 397, 1. 2)

iii. Worship	The only source refers to a $πρόποσις$ , $proposis$ , ceremonial communal drinking most often connected with the cult of Dionysos.
Deities worshipped	Dionysos

i.	Comments	Μάκκις, the name of the priest, most probably derives from the Latin nomen Maccius (O. Salomies, in AnnÉp 2001, 1768).
iii.	Bibliography	Chrysostomou, P. (1999-2001), 'Ταφικό ιερό μυστών του Διονύσου στη Μενηίδα Βοττιαίας', ΑΑΑ 32-34: 195-220. Chrysostomou, P. (2000), 'Το ταφικό ιερό μυστών του Διονύσου στη Μενηίδα Βοττιαίας: Η ανασκαφή του έτους 2000', Το Αρχαιολογικό Έργο στη Μακεδονία και Θράκη 14: 455–471

	i. Private association	Possible
	Note	The inscription by itself would not allow us to speak of anything other than a group of inititiates of Dionysos. Nevertheless, the accompanying archaeological evidence allows the interpretation of the congregation as a privately founded cultic association.
