XII. NOTES

i. Comments	Six persons are responsible for the erection of a monument, they are "from the association of pseilotar" (οἱ ἀπὸ τῆς τέχνης ψειλωτῶν, hoi apo tes technes pseiloton, l. 7). The word is not known; ed. pr. regard it as based on the semitic root psl, hence "stone-cutters" (against a derivation from ψιλῶ, psiloo, which would lead to "barbers"). The six members have made the construction "with their wives and children". This does not prove that women and children were members of the association; the six persons, although οἱ ἀπὸ τῆς τέχνης ψειλωτῶν, hoi apo tes technes pseiloton, do not seem to have acted on behalf of the association, but for themselves and their families.

XIII. EVALUATION

i. Private association	Probable
Note	Professional associations in the 2nd/3rd century AD were often very close to the official civic institutions, but they probably remained essentially private associations.
