VIII. PROPERTY AND POSSESSIONS

ii. Realty

It is possible that a group of hunters owned a burial plot, but there is absolutely no positive evidence for this.

iv. Honours/Other activities	As the formula Σεκόνδφ τῷ συνκυνηγῆ μνήμης χάρην (Sekondoi toi synkenegei mnemes charen) implies that a group of fellow kynegoi erected a funerary inscription and possibly attended to the burial of their companion Sekondos.

XII. NOTES

i. Comments	The date is based on the shape of the letters. The term kynegos denotes either a hunter or a venator , i.e. a beast fighter (bestiarius). On such associations see Liebenam 1890: 123; Robert 1971: 321; Wiedemann 1992: 117-8 (venatores and bestiarii); Ziebarth 1896: 117; Poland 1909: 105-6 and Robert 1971: 322 (hunters). Robert (1971: 135 nr. 185 and 322) considered highly possible that Sekondos was not a venator but belonged to an association of amateur hunters; Corsten (I.Prusa 161) has pointed out that our inscription does not permit a safe conclusion, but the iconography of the stele, depicting a family-scene and a winegrower measure suggests that the deceased was a farmer as well as an active hunter. The cost of Sekondos' funeral and tomb may have been covered either from funds coming from a common treasury of the group (if this was an organized association) or by individual ad hoc

i.	Private association	Possible
	Note	Sekondos was clearly a member of a group of kynegoi but whether this group constituted an organized private association cannot be proven.
