VIII. NOTES

iii.	Bibliography	Ritti, T. (2003), 'La neocoria di Hierapolis di Frigia', in Epigraphica. Atti delle Giornate di Studio di Roma e di Atene in memoria di Margherita Guarducci (1902-1999) , Rome: 177-215.
ii.	Poland concordance	Poland Δ *49C
		The term synodos is applied only to the Dionysiac artists in Hierapolis. It is therefore unlikely that hai synodoi refers to the city's many professional associations ( ergasiai ).
i.	Comments	If Ritti is correct in restoring [ἡ νεωκόρος βουλή], [he neokoros boule] in 1. 1 (instead of Judeich's [ἡ $\lambda \alpha \mu \pi \rho \sigma \tau \dot{\alpha} \tau \eta \beta \sigma \nu \lambda \dot{\eta}$ ], [he lamprotate boule] ; cf. Altertümer von Hierapolis 34), the inscription should be dated no earlier than 214-217 CE, because that is presumably the time when Hierapolis received the neokoria .

i.	Private associations	Possible
	Note	If the synodoi were regarded as private associations, they would be the only exception in a list of public institutions. This possibility cannot be excluded (it would fit the general trend of the late 2nd/early 3rd century CE), but one might also see the inscription as evidence for the public nature of the synodoi .
ii.	Historical authenticity	Certain
