Epigraphic source(s)

- i.b. Document(s) typology & language/script
- SEG 40: 1135: dedication by the archiboukolos Herodes to Dionysos Kathegemon
 - SEG 40: 1136: dedication by the archiboukolos Herodes to Augustus.
 - I.Pergamon 485: honorific inscription for Soter, son of Artemidoros, archiboukolos, by the boukoloï
 - I.Pergamon 487: probably an honorific inscription for the son (name not preserved) of Philadelphos
 - I.Pergamon 488: honorific inscription for the priestess Sosipatra by Theodotos, archiboukolos
 - MDAI(A) 24 [1899]: 179 no. 31: honorific inscription for Caius Antius Aulus Iulius Quadratus by the choreusantes boukoloï
 - I.Pergamon 486A: probably an honorific inscription for Iulius (possible for Caius Antius Aulus Iulius Quadratus, though the text is badly preserved).
 - I.Pergamon 486B: list of titles of officials (not all titles are necessarily related to the boukoloï) - perhaps register of new members (Schwarzer 2006: 159) or of archiboukoloï (Jaccottet 2003, vol. 2, 187 n. 376).
 - I.Pergamon 222 + I.Pergamon II p. 509: dedication of a stibadeion to Dionysos Kathegemon and the [boukoloï] (note, however, that the name is fully restored).
- All in Greek.

- i.c. Physical format(s)
- SEG 40: 1136: altar of white marble with a raised round outcrop on top with a slight depression, moulded on top and bottom. Two small horns in the corners above the upper moulding. Carved on the front side a garland with oak leaves (allusion to the corona civica granted by the senate) and a capricorn (the birth sign of Augustus, see Suet. Aug. 94.12) carrying a cornucopia (allusion to peace and prosperity). H. 50 x W. 31-25 x Th. 26.5 cm.
 - SEG 40: 1135: altar of white marble, moulded on top and bottom. Carved on the front side a kantharos (drinking vessel related to Dionysos) around which wine branches and ivy tendrils are twined. H. 50.5 x W. 32 x Th. 27 cm.
 - I.Pergamon 485: Slab of white marble broken into two fragments. The stone is tapering upwards. An ivy crown in low relief on the upper part of the stone. H. 96.5 x W. 32.5-37.5 cm
 - I.Pergamon 487: three fragments of a block of marble. H. 56 x W. 53 x Th. 24.5 cm.
 - I.Pergamon 488: marble stele. An ivy wreath is carved below the inscription. H. 39 x W. 34 cm.
 - MDAI(A) 24 [1899]: 179 no. 31: slab of white marble with a recess panel, broken on the right side and below
 - I.Pergamon 486A: fragment of a slab of white marble
 - I.Pergamon 486B: fragment of a slab of white marble
 - I.Pergamon 222 + I.Pergamon II p. 509: marble stele broken into two fragments (See below XII.i).

- ii. Source(s) provenance
- SEG 40: 1135 + 1136: found reused in 1978 in the 'hall of benches' in Pergamon.
 - I.Pergamon 485: there is some inconsistency in the accounts for the findspot of the stele: Curtius (1873: 39) reports that the stele was located 'in einem christilichen Haus'. According Fränkel (1899: 323, following Μουσεῖον) the stone was found in the ancient theatre of Pergamon.
 - I.Pergamon 487: SW side of the Upper Agora.
 - I.Pergamon 488: found reused in a private house, not far away from the so-called 'Basilika'.
 - MDAI(A) 24 [1899]: 179 no. 31: findspot unknown.
 - I.Pergamon 486A: found in the theatre.
 - I.Pergamon 486B: found in the theatre terrace.
 - I.Pergamon 222 + I.Pergamon II p. 509: found reused in the Byzantine wall.

VI. BUILT AND VISUAL SPACE

ii. References to buildings/objects	τ[ὸ σ]τιβάδε[ιον, ti[ō s]tibade[ion (I.Pergamon 222 l. 4) - Note however that is not entirely certain whether this inscription is related to the boukoloι , as their name is fully restored. Schwarzer (2006: 159) interprets the stibadeion as a dining hall and identifies it with the built bench in the elongated hall in the 'Hall of benches'.

IX. MEMBERSHIP

i. Number

In I.Pergamon 485 (ll. 7-25) the names of eighteen boukoloi are recorded. Together with the hymnodidaskaloi (two in total, ll. 26-28), the seilenoí (three in total, ll. 29-32; the choregos in line 32 was probably the leader of chorus consisting of seilenoí; see Ohlemutz 1969: 111), there were twenty-two members in total honouring the archiboukolos, Soter son of Artemidoros.

ii. Gender

Men
Women

Note

In I.Pergamon 488 a woman, holding the priesthood of an unspecified deity, is attested.

In MDAI(A) 24 [1899]: 179 no. 31 among the two choreusantes boukoloi who honoured Iulius Quadratus is a woman, Αὐφιδία Πόλλα Ποπλί[ου], Auphidia Polla Popli[ou] (l. 8). Her name precedes the name of the male boukolos.

In I.Pergamon 486A another woman is attested among the choreusantes boukoloi, Ioulia Po[...] (l. 6).

iv. Status	Five out of the eighteen boukoloi in I.Pergamon 485 were Roman citizens. Nine out of the seventeen members in MDAI(A) 24 [1899]: 179 no. 31 were Roman citizens. The women among the choreusantes boukoloi (MDAI(A) 24 [1899]: 179 no. 31; I.Pergamon 486A l. 5) bear Roman names. The archiboukolos Lucius Aninius Flaccus (MDAI(A) 24 [1899]: 179 no. 31 l. 13) was probably a member of the hymnodoi theou Sebastou kai theas Romes (I.Pergamon 374 A l. 11 see CAP Inv. 1653).
v. Relations	In I.Pergamon 485 Ioustos (l. 24) and Apollonios (l. 25) may have been the children of Apollonios son of Apollonios Poplios, mentioned in the line (l. 23) preceding these two names - this is Fränkel's assumption (1899: 325) given the absence of patronymics. On possible relations between the boukoloi see Harland 2014: 125.

X. ACTIVITIES

ii. Meetings and events	θεία μυστήρια, theia mysteria (I.Pergamon 485 l. 6): according to Ohlemutz (1969: 111) the theia mysteria was a private festival of the boukoloi, to be distinguished by the state-organized mysteria, led by the archpriest of Dionysos Kathegemon. (not followed by other scholars) The following names may not designate functionaries of the association but rather all those involved in the dramatic and choral performances in the Dionysian mysteries: ὕμνοδιδάσκαλοι, hymnodidaskaloi (I.Pergamon 485 l. 26) σεύληνοί, seilenoi (I.Pergamon 485 l. 29) χορηγός, choregos (I.Pergamon 485 l. 32)
iii. Worship	theia mysteria (I.Pergamon 485 ll. 3-6): the archiboukolos Soter, son of Artemidoros, presided over the theia mysteria in honour of Dionysos Kathegemon. οἱ χορεύουσα[ντες τὴν ἐπ'] αὐτοῦ τριε[τηρίδα], hoi choreusa[ntes] ten ep] autou trie[terida] (I.Pergamon 486A ll. 3-4)
Deities worshipped	Dionysos Kathegemon Augustus

XI. INTERACTION

i. Local interaction	In about 27 BC, Herodes, the archiboukolos set up two altars, one to Dionysos Kathegemon (SEG 40: 1135) and another one to Augustus (see XI.ii). It seems that the boukoloi paid their respect to the emperor, while at the same time fostered the cult of Dionysos Kathegemon, a civic cult in Pergamon since the reign of Eumenes II. The archiboukolos Soter presided the trieteric festival in honour of Dionysos Kathegemon, which included festivals and mysteries (I.Pergamon 485). The choreusantes boukoloi (MDAI(A) 24 [1899]: 179 no. 31; I.Pergamon 486A) honoured the priest of Dionysos Kathegemon, Caius Antius Aulus Iulius Quadratus, a prominent Pergamane citizen with a distinguished political career (e.g. proconsul of Asia in 109/110 AD: for his career see Halfmann 1979: 112).
ii. Interaction abroad	The boukoloi endorsed the imperial cult as suggested by the altar dedicated to Augustus (SEG 40: 1136). In honouring Caius Antius Aulus Iulius Quadratus, a prominent Pergamane citizen with a distinguished political career (e.g. proconsul of Asia in 109/110 AD: for his career see Halfmann 1979: 112), the boukoloi paid their respects, not only to an affluent and distinguished local benefactor but also to a representative of the Roman Imperial power.

XII. NOTES

i. Comments

The two altars dedicated to Dionysos Kathegemon and Augustus respectively constitute the earliest attestation of boukoloï in Pergamon (around or shortly after 27 BC). The altars were found in the so-called 'Hall of benches' (Podiumsaaal), which has been identified as the meeting place of the boukoloï (on the 'Hall of benches' see Schwarzer 2008). The remaining inscriptions (seven in total) pertaining to the Pergamene boukoloï date to the first and second centuries AD. None was found in the 'Hall of benches'.

I.Pergamon 222 + I.Pergamon II p. 509, a dedication to Dionysos Kathegemon and an unknown collectivity, has been attributed to boukoloï in light of the fact that in Pergamon Dionysian groups are mostly attested as boukoloï and not as mystai. (e.g. Jaccottet 2003, vol.2, no. 95). However, note that τοῖς [βουκόλοις] (l. 2) is fully restored.

It is hard to judge whether Sosipatra, the ἱέρηαν, hierean attested in I.Pergamon 488 l. 2 was indeed a priestess of Dionysos or a priestess of another deity. Given that a homonymous Sosipatra was priestess of Athena in Pergamon (I.Pergamon 492) the latter seems more probable.

XIII. EVALUATION

i. Private association

Possible

Note

The abundance of the epigraphic record about the boukoloï, spanning a period of roughly two centuries (from 27 BC to the 2nd c. AD), points to a durable group. However, the durability of the group seems to be directly linked to its involvement in the civic cult of Dionysos Kathegemon and the mysteries celebrated in his honour. Any evidence of an internal organization other than that for the conduct of the dramatic performances is missing. The boukoloï were in charge of the organization of the choral and dramatic performances in honour of Dionysos Kathegemon, presided over by the archiboukolos.

Although the boukoloï are considered a 'private cult association' by modern scholars (e.g. Horster 2011: 64), the absence of terms like thiasos, synodos etc. to designate the group would rather point to a loosely formed group, whose raison d'être seems to have been the organization of the Dionysian performances.
